Pearl Krupnip said that in dull times week. Fannie Berg testified that the girls have to buy their own needles. Three hundred girls, she said, had to Healy called the attention of the health department to this.

Miss Berg said that she worked from 7:30 a.m. to 5:45 p.m., and that she and thirteen other girls engaged on bast-ings were able to make $8 a week by giving up half of the lunch hour to work. All of the witnesses complained of harsh treatment from foremen, mostly in the way of abusive language. Alderman Geiger was curious to learn how the girls managed to live on their incomes. Miss Berg explained: "I pay $5 a month for my room and my sister charges me 15 cents a meal for what I eat. I am often hungry, but I can't afford to spend more."

"What have you and the others been doing since you went on strike?" Anna Javorewsky was asked.
"Going around beating up scabs." she calmly replied.

"Did you ever beat up one yourself?"
"Yes, I beat up one."

Didn't Need to Be Told.

"Did any one ever tell you to do that? Did you receive instructions from headquarters to do that?" "No; no one ever told me. I knew enough to do that without being told." Grace Gross told of an alleged system for evading the ten-hour law.

Bessie Alt, who earns $4 a week, related that she keeps within her income by walking two miles to and from work and spending only 25 cents a day for food. Miss Alt was asked if any foremen made improper advances to her.

"Some of the girls told me that the foreman had asked them to go out with him," answered the winess. "If they did they were better treated."

"Better paid?" asked Alderman Geiger. "I think so."

Fannle Berg told of a system of fines. "If damage is done to a garment, the offender is fined $1.50 or $2. If the offender is not known, we are all assessed 25 cents aplece," she said.
